A Message From One of Our Sponsors

Advancing Digital Equity in Partnership With Comcast NBCUniversal

Through Comcast's Internet Essentials broadband program and the creation of cutting-edge assistive technology, such as voice-activated remote controls, X1 eye control, and service centers for customers with disabilities, Comcast NBCUniversal has solidified its commitment to creating equitable opportunities for everyone.

Working with The Arc, they have also expanded resources for people with intellectual and developmental disabilities (IDD), including digital skills training through our Tech Coaching Centers to ensure that no one is left behind in this digital world. Tech Coaching Centers provide the necessary tools for individuals to seek employment, navigate the internet, and more on the path to independence.

When the pandemic hit a year ago, it was critical that individuals with IDD had the resources to access the internet, to maintain their independence and stay virtually connected with the people in their lives. Comcast expanded Internet Essentials eligibility, offered new Internet Essentials customers 60 days of free service, and waived some additional requirements. This made it easier for people with IDD to access high-speed internet, laptops, and even work from Comcast Lift Zones—safe spaces created for students and families to access WiFi in their community.

In 2020, The Arc@School was also awarded a grant to provide self-advocacy resources for students, ensuring that they still received the benefits of education from an online setting.

Comcast's partnership with The Arc strengthens our shared goal of closing the digital divide and elevating everyone's potential.

A Leader in Disability Rights

The Arc is the nation's oldest and largest organization for people with intellectual and developmental disabilities. The Arc of Arizona is a 501(c)(3) agency incorporated in 1958. It currently has over 1,000 members with 10 local chapters. The Arc of Arizona works with experts at the national, state, and local levels to ensure that our elected and appointed officials understand the needs, issues and concerns of people with IDD, and that federal and state laws and regulations help to promote full inclusion. Our public policy staff mobilizes self-advocates, disability organizations, and individuals across Arizona who care about the rights of all people with disabilities, utilizing grassroots action to effect substantial and meaningful progress in the legislative landscape.

The Arc of Arizona supports itself through institutional giving fundraising efforts, private donations, chapter network dues, and program contracts with the Division of Developmental Disabilities. The volunteers and staff who comprise The Arc of Arizona are individuals with developmental disabilities, parents and friends of individuals with developmental disabilities, and educators and professionals in the human services field.
